Greensburg Y Hosting Open House for Employment Seekers

GREENSBURG — The Greensburg YMCA is experiencing the same staff shortages impacting every industry in all channels of employment.

In an effort to recruit staff for many of its diverse departments, the Y is hosting a Job Expo Open House, Wednesday, Feb. 1, from 10 a.m.-6 p.m. at its facility on 101 S. Maple Avenue, in downtown Greensburg. Many of these positions offer excellent benefits for eligible employees, including medical (for full-time employees working 30-plus hours), paid time-off (PTO), retirement plan when eligibility is met and free Y memberships and discounts on programs.

“The national employment crisis is not exclusive of our Y,” said CEO Suzanne Printz. “We have the same staffing shortages as many companies and organizations that have impacted some of our programming. We have managed to move forward, but we also want to be proactive and create some recruitment initiatives to bolster our staff.

“This open house will not only provide an opportunity for job seekers to find their purpose...hopefully in our organization...but also opens our building to the community so they see our facility and observe the many great programs we offer,” Printz added.

Employment seekers are encouraged to bring resumes with them, and Y staff members will be present to conduct job interviews and tours of the facility.
